Two Cling To Rock in Ocean 7 Hours

Two Pacifica fishermen were lifted to safety on Sunday by a Coast Guard helicopter after spending nearly seven terrifying hours trapped on the side of a cliff on Mussel Rock in the ocean just off the coast at the south edge of Daly City.

Safe today through what a sheriff's office helicopter crew described as the "courage, perserverance and capability" of the Coast Guard helicopter crew are Matthew H. Kozak Jr., 24, of 102 Franz Court, and Charles F. Vella, 22, of 1243 De Solo Drive.

When first spotted at 12:40 p.m. by Deputies Robert Alford and Les Caldwell, the pilot and observer respectively of the sheriff's helicopter, the fishermen were clinging to the side of a steep cliff 20 feet above the water on the northwest side of Mussel Rock, about 75 yards offshore.

Caldwell reported that it was not until 2:15 p.m. that the Coast Guard helicopter, which was engaged in another rescue five miles offshore from Half Moon Bay, could reach the scene.

Caldwell said that as the Coast Guard helicopter, piloted by Lt. Cmdr. Casey Quinn, hovered above the rock, the co-pilot, Lt. Roger Logan, was lowered by winch on a rope to the top of the rock. Logan then attached another rope to a wooden fixture, lowering the rope to the trapped fishermen.

Kozak and Vella used the rope to make their way to the top of the rock. Each was lifted into the Coast Guard helicopter on the winch rope operated by Air Crewman John Sanfilipo.

Meanwhile, the sheriff's helicopter, operating its siren and loudspeaker, cleared a large crowd of spectators away from the top of the bluff on the shore in order to provice space for the Coast Guard helicopter to land and deposit the rescued men. The Coast Guard craft then returned to the rock and lifted Logan back into the helicopter

Caldwell said Kozak and Vella told him they had walked out to Mussel Rock at low tide, about 6:30 a.m. They noticed an hour later they had been trapped by the returning tide, with its turbulent water.

The men said they tried in vain for several hours to signal passersby on shore that they were in trouble. Finally someone noticed them and called the sheriff's office.

In commending the Coast Guard crew, Caldwell said without their efforts, "the two victims would have eventually lost their footing from fatigue and posibly perished in the ocean waters below."

Yellow Cab Rate Boosted

Yellow Cab Company, professing to be in a "desperate financial situation," was granted a rate increase by the Daly City council Monday.

It was the second rate increase for the company in less than three years.

After a brief quizzing of Charles L. O'Connor, senior vice president of Yellow Cab, by members of the city council, the board unanimously agreed the company should be given the rate hike.

City Manager David Rowe had recommended the rate increase be granted based on a study made by his offices since the matter was brought before the council last month.

Rowe's report disclosed present rates of the company were below those in 12 surrounding cities.

It also noted the company's total trips within Daly City had fallen off — from 160,255 to 130,629 — between 1970 and 1972.

In his plea to the council, O'Connor said the company's "financial picture is becoming more and more critical under the present rates."

The new rates will increase present fares from 65 cents for the first one-eighth mile or fraction thereof instead of the 60 cents for the first one-sixth mile that was in effect. In addition, the charge will be 10 cents for each succeeding one-seventh mile instead of each one-sixth mile.

The net effect is that this increase will add 15 cents to the first mile traveled and 10 cents for each succeeding mile.

The new rates will give Daly City the rates Yellow Cab charges in San Francisco.

There was some criticism of Yellow's services to local patrons in the early morning hours.

A local bar owner confronted Mayor Tony Giammona before the meeting and said he was often unable to secure a cab for his patrons between 2 and 4 a.m.

O'Connor promised to "look into this matter."

An Insurance Dividend Check to DC

Safety Consultant Joe Richwood from State Compensation Insurance Fund presented the City of Daly City with a dividend check for $38,791.99, which represents a 43 per cent refund of the city's annual premium.

Mayor Anthony A. Giammona received the check for the city, along with John Vallerga, chairman of the Safety Inspection Committee, and Ray Griest, Safey Committee coordinator.

The refund was made possible through the efforts of the city's Safety Committee and the active participation of all city employees in the safety program.

This has resulted in a continued reduction of time lost from the job due to industrial accidents. Richwood, who is a Daly City resident, said he was especially pleased to make this presentation in his own community.

Annexation of 4 Cemeteries Being Planned by Daly City

Daly City may soon be known as a "cemetery city" instead of a "bedroom community."

That is, if plans to annex four cemeteries presently in an unincorporated area bounded by Hickey, Junipero Serra and Serramonte boulevards and Interstate 280 freeway, go ahead smoothly.

The task of annexing the four small cemeteries is not considered a monumental one.

What brought about the grave decision by the city staff to include the burial grounds in the city limits is the cost of water.

If the cemeteries come into Daly City they will be charged at "in-city rates" for water. Otherwise the rates are considerably higher.

All-Year School?

About 50 persons attended Monday night's meeting of the Millbrae School District Board of Education, held at Glen Oaks School. Focus of attention for the majority of the audience was the proposal made by Harold Fritz, Glen Oaks principal, and his staff, to start year-round classes there in September.

Stating that he had held a series of meetings with parents since the beginning of the year, Fritz said that 74 of them were in favor of the plan, and 37 were against it. The new calendar would consist of four nine-week sessions, each followed by a three-week vacation. Pupils would attend school for the same number of days as they currently do, and teachers would work their approximate 182-4 days, with most holidays observed as they are now.

Among the reasons for his proposal, Fritz said, are greater use of school facilities, and elimination of the learning loss teachers observe following the summer vacation. In lieu of summer school, pupils would be given an opportunity of attending mini-sessions during their vacation times, for either remedial work or enrichment classes.

Trustee Dr. Larry Foster mentioned that the issue had aroused much emotional response, and he made several comments regarding the plan, including the fact that he had not seen proven research regarding the learning loss, also that it is possible that this loss could occur during the vacation periods under the year-round plan, and accumulate to be equal or more than that to which Fritz referred in the summer. He said that other schools had adopted the plan due to shortage of facilities, which is not a problem in the Millbrae district.

Trustee Dr. Gerald Poppers said, "I'm very hesitant to approve any plan which is opposed by a third of the parents."

Mrs. Doris M. Brown, retiring trustee, spoke in favor of the proposal, saying she felt it would be better for teachers to be able to set their classroom plans for nine weeks at a time, rather than for all year. "At first I wasn't sure about this," she added, "but now I feel we should try it, since the children would still be in school for the same amount of days."

Board chairman Theodore Dimitre had cards distributed to members of the audience who wished to speak, choosing at random three persons who wished to speak in favor of the new calendar, and three who opposed it. Since some parents indicated that they would apply for a transfer to send their children to another school, rather than have them participate in the year-round scheme, Supt. Four Police Cars Damaged In Wild Coastside Chase

Four patrol cars were damaged on Monday in a 12-mile chase of a stolen tow truck on Cabrillo Highway from Pacifica to El Granada.

Four shots were fired by officers as Pacifica, sheriff and Half Moon Bay patrol vehicles joined the chase which ended with the capture of Joseph T. Rodriguez, 48, a truck driver, who gave addresses in both Los Angeles and Watsonville.

Rodriguez was booked at County Jail on charges of assault with intent to commit murder and with vehicle theft.

The chase started shortly after a citizen called the sheriff's office at 12:21 a.m. to report that a tow truck without lights was northbound on Cabrillo Highway and was being driven in an erratic manner.

Pacifica Policemen Herb Cowan and Bob Drossel attempted to stop the truck 15 minutes later in the Linda Mar area. However, the truck made a U-turn and headed south, with the patrol cars giving pursuit.

Cowan got his patrol car in front of the truck, but the truck swerved to the shoulder, then proceeded to sideswipe the patrol vehicle. Drossel got his car in front of the truck and slowed to 25 miles an hour. He said the truck hit the rear of the patrol car, then passed it. As Drossel pulled alongside the truck, the truck swerved into the side of the patrol car.

By that time, a sheriff's patrol car manned by Deputy Sheriffs Anthony Guillory and Dennis Kenney, and a Half Moon Bay patrol vehicle driven by Officer Andrew Smith were in the chase.

The officers said that as the sheriff's and Half Moon Bay cars pulled alongside the tow truck, the vehicle swerved into the sides of the vehicles.

Finally, five patrol cars managed to box in the truck and force it to a halt near El Granada, with officers taking Rodriguez into custody at gunpoint.

Police said the tow truck reportedly was stolen in Watsonville.

Some of the officers involved in the chase reported being bruised in the buffetting of the patrol cars by the tow truck, but no serious injuries were reported.

MARGE KOZKOWSKI, San Bruno's new mayor

Kozkowski S. Bruno's First Woman Mayor

Hmm. Let's see now. How do you address a woman mayor?

"Marge, we've got to think of something to call you," said San Bruno's Councilman George Corey, after he had just handed the gavel to the city's new mayor, Margaret Kozkowski.

"Marge!" replied Mrs. Kozkowski, preferring informality.

"Madam Mayor," responded Corey, satisfied he'd found the proper term.

That's a little bit the way things went at Monday night's council reorganization when Mrs. Kozkowski became San Bruno's first woman mayor.

Addressing her proved a tongue twister for several persons. At one point in the meeting City Attorney Joe Galligan even hesitated before finally blurting out "Mrs. Mayor."

The council reorganization went completely as expected. Corey himself nominated Mrs. Kozkowski for the post, and asked for nominations for vice mayor. Councilman John Barnard quickly nominated Councilman Tony Governale for that post, and Councilman Neil Christal immediately called for nominations to be closed. The vote on both positions was unanimous.

Trial Delay

The bribery trial of Attillo Joe Spagnuolo, a Millbrae bartender, and Ronald Sacco, a San Francisco teamster, scheduled for Monday, has been postponed until May 21.

The two men are accused of giving bribes to undercover police agents in an effort to cover alleged bookmaking operations.

BULLETIN

Two men were reported caught in a small plane crash off Clarendon pier in Sharp Park area yesterday.

Rescuers reached the men who were seen on the beach as of 2:30 p.m., and rushed them to Mary's Help Hospital.

Bayhill Wins 3-2 Approval

A Epstein and Sons, Inc., Monday gained approval on a 3-2 vote to build two 13-story office buildings in San Bruno's Bayhill Shopping Center complex.

Now it appears the firm will have to convince a majority of the city's voters of the project's asset to the city as well.

For no sooner had the council consent been given than resident (and a former councilman) Dick Griffith promised that "a referendum petition will be circulated."

Such a petition requires a signing by 10 per cent of the city's 15,348 registered voters. The signatures must be obtained within 30 days after the ordinance granting the approval to build becomes effective. The second, and final, reading of the ordinance is set for May 14.

Brent Helehar, project manager for the complex, said he wants to start construction "as soon as possible" and said that he figured it would be about July before actual work could begin, the referendum notwithstanding.

It was at times an explosive meeting in which City Manager Gerald Minford took on council critic Gary Mondfrans for attacking a city staff report.

Minford called Mondfrans' remarks "unwise comments based on a lousy lack of information." He said Mondfrans' "use of innuendo and inferences and general character assassination belittles him more than those he tries to belittle."

His remarks touched off a stream of invectives seemingly from all sides.

Pacifying Action on Sneath Lane

San Bruno council Monday night took an action regarding Sneath Lane improvement that should somewhat pacify the conservationists fighting to keep that street's rural nature intact.

On a recommendation by Councilman George Coery, the council unanimously agreed to his proposal that is meant to establish the necessary safety of the road, while maintaining as much of an ecological balance as possible.

Here is what will be done:

1.) The exact plan for a Sneath Lane improvement will be referred to the city's environmental committee and planning department to program a specific plan.

2.) The engineering department will be informed that the planning will proceed on an immediate basis, with data and information to be returned to the council as quickly as reasonable.

3.) In the event no satisfactory result is attained between the environmental committee and the planning department, the council will hold an informal public hearing.

The purpose of that hearing would be to (a) adopt the original or modified proposal for improvement; (b) refer the modified proposal to an independent consulting firm; (c) turn the entire project over to an independent firm for design and engineering; or (d) other alternatives to be noticed at the time of the hearing.

Money to do the project is available. However, the work to be done by the city's engineering department, or any other city staff work, will be gratis, that is not to be deducted from those available funds.

ferred to the famous Harry Truman quote "If we can't stand the heat, then we'd better get the hell out of the kitchen," he said.

Councilman George Corey came to Minford's defense. "I'm frankly delighted to see the city manager defend his staff," said Corey.

Councilman Neil Christal, however, went the opposite direction. It was he and Barnard who cast the two votes opposing the approval of the project. Christal asked that an independent survey be made.

"The staff has made a report based on a preconceived notion of what we should do," charged Christal. He was echoing the sentiment of Planning Commissioner Leon Miller, who had submitted a letter on the subject to the council.

"I was shocked that council ... is permitting staff to render the final decision. I cannot understand this unseemly and unconscionable haste," wrote Miller in part.

The report prepared by city staff shows a glowing statistical picture of how the total Bayhill development would bring an estimated net annual gain to the city of $981,000.

The economic impact and the traffic generation problem have been the two key issues in the Bayhill development, which originally was scheduled for a "low profile" nature.

"When you balance estimated revenues of over $4 million annually to the various tax supported agencies in the city against an estimated cost of $158,000, the economic benefits to the community are rather obvious," stated Kinford in his report to the council.

He also said, in regards to traffic congestion, that although there will be "some congestion at peak hours" the changes recommended in street design and traffic flow "will create an acceptable traffic situation."

The ecologically and environmentally minded, however disagreed emphatically with this conclusion they say is not supported with tact.

One resident, Elmer Butler, even warned the council of a possible "negative impact" economy-wise, pointing to Tanforan and what its presence has meant to the city's businessmen on San Mateo Avenue.

Yellow Cab Rates

was temporarily at a loss for words when Councilman Victor Kyriakis observed he had ordered a cab an hour before to attend the meeting "and for all I know it still hasn't shown up at my house."

O'Connor assured the councilman such instances were rare and depended on the availability of cabs during certain hours.

Asked why Yellow's paying trips had decreased over the past three years, O'Connor explained most people now travel by private car.

Councilman Paul Hupf was assured by O'Connor there would be no rate and a half charge for fares from the city to airport.

There were no public objections registered during the hearing.

In other action, the council on a 4-1 vote, with councilman Hupf dissenting, approved a permit allowing Pete Pereira to move a house from 10 Skyline Drive to a Santa Rita Avenue address, both in Daly City.

Two Santa Rita Avenue property owners attended the meeting to protest Pereira moving the ranch-style home onto two lots he owns on the street.

Both Henry Low and Leon Garitta said the people living along the street did not want the house moved there.

The house is now on blocks in an area fronting a cliff in the far western section of the city. The ground has been slipping in the area in recent years.

Pereira purchased a similar house in the same area and after months of hassling with the city was finally able to move it to a more stable location several blocks away on Northridge Drive.

City Atty. Albert Polonsky informed the council he thought denying a moving permit to Pereira would be unconstitutional. He was satisfied, he said, that if the city allowed Pereira to build a similar home on the property they should allow him to move his house there.

Several persons had signed a petition circulated by Pereira voicing their satisfaction with the house moving project.

Later, two of the households attempted to remove their names.

All-Year School

Edward J. Muehlhausen pointed out that the district would have to make this possible.

Action on the issue will be taken at the board's May 21 session.

Dr. Rufus Clapp outlined the early childhood education program, funds for which be made available by the state to some districts, following recommendations to be made by a committee. Members of the committee are to include parents, and other members of the community; teachers; administrators; and classified personnel. They will plan a program for grades kindergarten through third, keyed to individualized instruction, and a proposal will be sent to the State Board of Education next spring, in order that it may begin in the fall of 1974. Dr. Clapp said that the committee would be an advisory group, and present their suggestions to the trustees prior to consideration at the state level.

Vandalism cost the district $6,074 from January through March of this year, according to Business Manager John J. Lynch, and $6,059 for the comparable period in 1972. This includes glass breakage; entry and theft; malicious mischief and labor costs. He said that nearly all acts of vandalism occur between Friday and Sunday evenings, and that the average ages of the culprits who have been apprehended is between 11 and 15.

Dr. Muehlhausen said that vandalism reports should not be taken out of context, and the fact that most young people are not involved in this destruction should be noted. He also added that the district is insured against some losses.

The board approved the utilization of the district conference center in the annex of Chadbourne School for a kindergarten classroom. This will cost about $600, and is necessitated by an increase in enrollment from 285 in 1970 to the present 320 pupils. Meetings which have been held at the conference center will convene at Spring Valley School starting in September, when the kindergartners will begin using their new classroom.

Approval was given for the maternity leave of absence for Mrs. Judith L. Scott, Glen Oaks teacher, and the employment of Mrs. Fe Astrero as an educational aide. The retirement of two teachers, Mrs. Grace Staley and Mrs. Helene J. Rodgers, was accepted, together with that of Mrs. Helen Dalleske, cafeteria worker.

'Minority Faction' in Jefferson Victory

By WILL THOMAS

The minority faction candidated aho ac ieved last week's stunning upset of the present chairman of the Jefferson Elementary School Board of Trustees hailed it as a victory for the children and the people.

Climaxing a heated campaign, voters in the Daly City-Colma area district called for a realignment of its board majority with the ouster of Albert Collett.

Two incumbents, Mrs. Dorothy Adams and James W. Cranna, were returned to office, along with challenger David Parker.

The makeup of the board will change in July when Parker takes his seat with the two winning incumbents, Mrs. Beverly Forrester and Ed Tomasello.

The board has been split sharply on most issues, particularly over attempts by Mrs. Adams and her ally Mrs. Forrester to dismiss Supt. Frank Greenwood.

Cranna has been in the Collett-Tomasello camp, which has supported Greenwood fully, and been contrary to the Forrester-Adams endeavors on other district business.

Parker and Mrs. Adams ran as a "ticket."

The "other side" was made up of Cranna, Collett and challenger Carol J. Kennaugh.

Parker's election by fewer than 100 votes creates a new majority, because Parker — who has attended nearly every school board meeting in recent years — aligns himself with the Adams-Forrester thinking.

This thinking apparently extends to Superintendent Greenwood's guture. Parker reiterated this attitude again when supporters gathered at the Broadmoor Community Center after the election outcome was known.

Mrs. Adsma and Parker said the victories were not theirs as candidates but by the "people" and for "the kids."

Their campaign had centered, in part, around establishment of educational priorities and administrative responsibility.

Cranna polled the largest number of votes. Because there were three seats to fill, he also was the "compromise" third choice of supporters of the Adams-Parker slate.

The tally:

James Cranna		2746
Dorothy Adams		2442
David Parker	2390	2390
Carol Kennaugh		2310
Albert Collet		2140

Bruno Woman Sees Burglary

Mrs. Ann Mae Loynd awakened at about 2 a.m. She dicovered her bedroom being burglarized. The thief is still being sought, police said.

According to San Bruno police, the burglar apparently entered the apartment on Shelter Creek Lane by prying open a den window next to the bedroom.

Police said the thief rummaged through dresser drawers and clothing pockets as Mrs. Lloyd cautiously watched — and her husband beside her slept through it all.

Tot Killed, Mother Hurt in Auto Accident in Millbrae

A 2-year-old boy was killed and his mother was injured on Thursday when their car went off Lomita Avenue in Millbrae and crashed into a brushy canyon.

There were reportedly no witnesses to the accident at the north end of the "Millbrae Scar" property which sweeps through the city toward San Bruno. The former highway right-of-way has been acquired as city park and open space land and is covered by brush and eucalyptus trees.

Persons at the scene said the car appeared to have gone out of control and down a steep brush-covered hillside.

It was said to be resting 75 or 80 feet below the roadway level, in growth so thick that only the rear of the car was visible.

Police were notified of the crash at 9:16 a.m., and Officer Michael Stines rushed to the scene. Concerned about the baby's injuries, he hurried the boy to Peninsula Hospital, where he died shortly after arrival at 9:26 a.m.

The baby was identified as Barry Haslett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Haslett, 1179 Ridgewood Drive.

His mother, Athena, was being examined for back injuries.

Police said they had no details as to the cause of the crash. Officers admitted that it occurred on a twisting section of roadway that is sometimes difficult to negotiate.

SSF Youth Rescued

A 19-year-old South San Francisco youth was in Mary's Help Hospital today after becoming the victim of a near-drowning at Sharp Park Beach in Pacifica Saturday afternoon.

David Harper, 112 Francisco Dr., was reported to have sustained cramps in both of his legs as he was swimming offshore. Two onlookers swam in to save him, but one of them Peter Kipke, 17, 309 Alta Mesa Dr., nearly drowned himself.

Pacifica firemen, finding Harper lying unconcsious on the beach, gave him inhalation until the ambulance arrived — then found Kipke, lying in the bed of a pickup truck, also needing inhalation.

The two youths were rushed to Mary's Help Hospital where they were treated for water inhalation, shock and exhaustion Kipke was released after treatment while Harper was hospitalized for continued observation.

Westmoor Summer School Set

Summer school in the Jefferson High School District will be conducted at the Westmoor High School in Daly City from June 18 to August 10.

Principal Steven A. Mezzera said pre-registration, now underway, will continue to May 17, with late registration scheduled on June 18-19.

The deadline for program changes will be June 20 for the district's students, who come from the North County cities of Pacifica, Daly City and portions of San Bruno.

The district has six schools — Jefferson, Thornton, Serramonte and Westmoor in Daly City and Terra Nova and Oceana in Pacifica — but the summer school will be held only on the one campus.

"Summer session is only 40 days in duration and therefore requires good attendance habits as well as punctuality," Mezzera said.

He said the school would call parents when a pupil has not arrived at school on any given day in order to inform the parents of their child's attendance status.

Citing the State Educational Code, Mezzera said there are no valid excuses for summer school absences.

Glenn P. Smith CC District Head

Glenn P. Smith of San Mateo, vice president of San Francisco State University, has been named chancellor and superintendent of the three-campus San Mateo Community College District.

Smith will assume the $39,500 per year position July 1, when the current chancellor, Clifford Erickson, leaves the job to return to teaching.

As chancellor, he will be boss of three campuses, each with its own president, and an educational system serving 26,000 students.

Smith was ppointed at a special meeting of the Community College District trustees this morning, and was warmly welcomed by presidents of the three colleges he will oversee. They, and members of the faculties, pledged their cooperation.

He forecast that the main challenges on the horizon for community colleges, as for all of higher education, will be "the re-allocation of resources" to meet the changing needs and pressures created by the current population "plateau."

With two campuses, Skyline and Canada, relatively uncompleted, he said, the district must face the fact that student population has apparently reached a no-growth situation.

During periods of constant physical growth, he said, administrators must realize that their major function is to "establish and maintain quality" of education. But when growth tapers off, "administrators face a much tougher task," he said. "They must anticipate their needs and demands, and do it well, and higher education is not used to doing that."

"If I have any abilities," he said, "they have been in problem solving. At San Francisco State we've certainly had the opportunity to work on a few.

"I know there are problems in the district, though it would be a little premature of me to describe them specifically, and I am sure with cooperation we can work them out."

A Bronze Star winner in the infantry in World War II and a veteran of the campus conflicts of the 1960s as well, Smith brings a rich educational background to his new job.

He served at San Francisco State since 1958, was a trustee of the San Bruno Elementary School District in the 1950s and a member of the city's planning commission, and taught in junior high school in Los Angeles.

He is a resident of 1244 Laurel Hill Drive, San Mateo, with his wife, Kathleen, and their children, Ransom, 21, a student at San Jose State; Millie, 18, a student at CSM; and Thomas, 10, and Julie, 9, students at Highlands Elementary School.

Dr. Sessue Hayakawa, Smith's chief at San Francisco State, said:

"I regret that Mr. Smith will have to leave San Francisco State, but I know that as a skilled administrator and educational philosopher he has an important contribution to make in his new post."

New Chancellor's Bruno Record

By JACK BIK

When Glenn P. Smith, new chancellor of the San Mateo Community College District comes to San Bruno to visit his Skyline College, he will be returning to a community which was his home for many years.

Smith was an original owner on Lowell Drive, in the Sheltered Valley section of Crestmoor Park, and active on the board of the Crestmoor Homeowners' Association.

He served for a year and a half on the San Bruno Planning Commission, but was enticed from that body by the opportunity to run for the San Bruno Park School District Board, in 1963. He served one year as president of the school board. He left that body in 1966 when he bought his new home in San Mateo.

Smith insisted on a number of radical changes on the way the board was operated, when he first came on. He found that the board members were involved in one meeting or another nearly every night of the week. In addition, trustees were spending their days, whenever they could, in such tasks as checking the various schools, particularly those under construction.

Smith asserted that the purpose of the board was to set policy and not to interfere with administration, if they could not trust the administrators to carry out their policies, he complained, then they should get better administrators.

He was particularly critical of the trustees spending their time inspecting construction jobs, when the district was already paying both an architect and a building inspector to carry out those tasks, in addition to the superintendent and business manager.

He urged that when the trustees had to meet with another body, one person should be appointed to represent the board and report back to the full body. Otherwise, persons who were ordinarily busy in numerous business and civic affairs — just the type of person who could contribute the kind of expertise the school district needed — would never find time to serve on the board.

Smith's point of view met with a good deal of resistance from his fellow trustees.

Roller Rink Row

The controversial proposal to build a roller rink on Pedro Point ran into more snags at last Monday's meeting of the Pacifica Planning Commission, and was continued to May 7.

The rink has the backing of youth and business groups, both as providing a source of business and taxes, and as a wholesome youth activity. However, the commissioners have been critical of the proposal, and the staff has recommended denial.

The chief complaint had been that the site chosen is too small, causing the need for a host of variances — for setbacks, landscaping, parking and plot coverage. At the previous meeting, the applicant was urged to enlarge his site, or get a bigger site.

Monday night, applicants Edward Heimann and B. Longo presented revised plans which they hoped would satisfy the planners' objections. The proposed rink was reduced 25 per cent in size, from 16,000 to 12,000 square feet, enabling the rink to increase its landscaping from 7 to 12 per cent, and to increase its parking from 30 to 43 spaces.

The reduced size of building also reduces the parking requirements — from 213 to 160 spaces — and thus produces less of a required parking variance. The applicants pleaded that they could not cut the size of the building any more and still have a usable rink.

Planning commissioners still appeared dissatisfied, citing the fact that variances were still required. A suggestion by one of the applicants that he would not need many parking spaces because the rink would be close enough to Linda Mar so that children would bicycle there, backfired. Commissioners wondered how the children would get across the Coast Highway, and urged that a site be chosen closer to residential areas, such as on Crespi, or next to the Sea Bowl.

The applicants were also urged to find out from the landowner, the Archdiocese of San Francisco, what plans there are for the remainder of the land. Les Clark, director of community development, felt that the current "paper streets" and lots on the five-acre site should be abolished and a plan produced for the entire area, now vacant.

Permits for establishment and maintenance of two children's miniparks were approved. However, planners deplored the "double standard" under which the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department insists on extensive landscaping for private development, but uses minimum landscaping on its own projects.

The parks were an addition to Pomo Park, on Carmel Avenue and Canyon Drive, and on the southerly portion of Westview elementary school site, on Glencourt and Inverness Drive.

Jail Man in SSF Theft

A 42-year-old San Francisco man has been booked for grand theft and conspiracy to commit grand theft by South San Francisco police.

Arrested last week was Pasqual Cardenas. He was held in lieu of $25,000 bail, police said.

Police said they were looking for a female accomplice described as 5-4, weighing 150 pounds, about age 40, of Mexican-American descent and wearing a white shawl and dark-colored coat.

This is what happened, according to police: Two elderly sisters were shopping at the QFI Store, Westborough Boulevard and El Camino Real when the female suspect reached into the purse of one of the women but dropped her wallet and ran when alerted by Cardenas. The wallet was recovered.

St. Dunstan's Reversal

Millbrae Ban On Building Is Extended

In a complete reversal of action, Millbrae Council last week decided to extend by nine months, a ban on building in the 22 acres of church-owned property behind St. Dunstan's school.

The reversal required two Councilmen who last week had voted to let the year-long moratorium die, to drop their opposition and move to reconsider.

Its effect is to give the city time to finish a General Plan which is due in two or three months, make any zoning changes that might be recommended for the "Archdiocese Property," and possibly to raise money to buy the land.

The reversed position came at the last possible moment.

Unless extended, the moratorium would have died today.

Monday night, a developer is to appear before the city's Planning Commission with plans to build houses on the sloping grassy land.

Cal Properties' plans have been delayed for more than a year by the city's moratorium, which originally was enacted in response to public demand that apartments not be allowed on the plot.

Last week's turnabout was also due to public pressure, which came at the end of a meeting traditionally reserved for election of a new Mayor, speeches, and congratulations.

Councilman Arthur Lepore had been chosen Mayor, and Councilman Harold Purpus elected as Vice Mayor. Speeches of congratulation had been made, and guests introduced.

Then, in the time reserved for "public welfare," two citizens appealed for the Council to reverse their last week's action which allowed the moratorium to die.

Waving a sheaf of petitions which ask that the city hold another bond election to raise funds to buy the property, Mrs. Mary Griffin, 67 Ora Vista, pleaded for a change in vote.

"The development of this 22 acres would have too great an impact to just let it go by," she said.

"I certainly hope this would not be allowed to be buildozed off and carved into little squares."

New Mayor Lepore asked for advice from the City Attorney and was told any motion to reconsider would have to come from the two men who voted against continuing the moratorium last week, Councilmen William Glang and Barney Spera.

Bill Baxter, 18 Corte Princessa, told the Council:

"You are the elected leaders of this community, you have the responsibility to represent the majority opinion, not the minority."

Baxter referred to the fact that a bond issue to raise money to buy the property, received 61 per cent of the vote last fall, but failed to pass.

"You have the responsibility to look forward," he said, "and to think what that 22 acres is going to symbolize 50 years from now, what it will do for the children of citizens of this city."

Councilman Glang said his reasons for voting to end the moratorium were valid, that there had not been sufficient public interest, especially since the bond defeat.

"Three times we have acted," he said, "if there had been a concerted public effort I might change my mind."

After Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Noralee Gelham, 479 Anita Drive, had proclaimed that "workers are ready to go out and get petition signatures asking for a new bond issue," Glang did change his mind and moved to reconsider.

He seconded Glang's move motion to reconsider, which passed 5-0, and then Glang moved to extend the moratorium nine months. That motion also passed 5-0, and the council ended its meeting to attend a party honoring the new Mayor Lepore and retiring Mayor Bernard Esser.

The meeting was adjourned in memory of Neils Schultz, developer who built much of Millbrae and was considered one of the city's greatest friends.

Then, it took more minutes to convince Spera that he should reconsider also.

During the discussion, it was pointed out that the city's option requires that the purchase price of $1,300,000 be paid to the Archdiocese of San Francisco before June 30.

Others noted that the city's new General Plan, in its present state, recommends that the land be developed for single-family homesites.

Spera said he objected to reported plans of the city to use the land for tennis courts, swimming pools, and other recreational structures.

"I'm not making this second, to purchase the property and cover it with concrete," he said. "If there are any plans to buy it, I'll want a commitment from my fellow councilmen that it be reserved for open space."

Girl, Friend Hurt in Crash On El Camino

A young San Bruno woman was seriously injured Saturday night in Millbrae when the car she was riding in went off El Camino Real and slammed into a traffic signal control box.

Joyce L. Larson, 18, 1230 Huntington Avenue, San Bruno was admitted to Peninsula hospital with a fractured pelvis and possible internal injuries. She is listed as being in "fair" condition in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Also injured was the driver, Bruce R. Bennett, 20, 2648 Isabelle Avenue, San Mateo, who suffered lacerations of the chin forehead and right arm. He was transferred to Kaiser hospital.

Millbrae police said Bennett's small car was northbound on El Camino, when it veered off the roadway and smashed into the traffic control at Hillcrest Avenue. The cause of the accident is being investigated.

Local CAP Hunts Missing Airplane

San Mateo Civil Air Patrol leaders are directing a search for a Santa Rosa airplane missing since Friday night with four people aboard.

James Dryden of San Carlos Squadron 110 is acting as Mission Coordinator at search headquarters in Ukiah, the reported destination for the missing plane.

Civil Air Patrol spokesman James Bigelow reports the plane is a Piper Cherokee 180, from "Let's Fly," corporation at Sonoma County Airport, Santa Rosa.

Carrying Mr. and Mrs. L. Monroe, their daughter and son-in-law, the plane left Santa Rosa at 9:20 p.m. Friday. Weather and visibility were good.

Pilot Monroe had made the trip from Santa Rosa to Ukiah before, reports Bigelow, and had filed a flight plan outlining his rounte.

Twenty minutes after take-off, he radioed to the Ukiah Flight Service Station, that he was "five miles south." Five minutes later he radioed in and closed his flight plan, presumably from the air as many pilots do just before landing.

By Saturday morning, Monroe had not shown up at his Santa Rosa pharmacy, and the plane had not been returned to "Let's Fly."

All Day Saturday, and all day Easter Sunday, Civil Air Patrol pilots and Mendocino County Sheriff's Air Patrol pilots, searched the numerous ridges between Santa Rosa and Ukiah.

D.C. Inmate Stabbed at San Quentin

A 24-year-old Daly City man was stabbed under the left shoulder while working in the San Quentin Prison kitchen Wednesday.

Lindell Paul Jeffers, serving a sentence for robbery and other charges, was hospitalized in satisfactory condition, according to a prison spokesman.

A homemade knife with a 6½-inch blade was found near the scene and a taped handle was found nearby, authorities said. An assailant and motive are being sought.

The last stabbing incident at San Quentin was March 24, the spokesman said.

Jeffers has been at San Quentin since November, 1969. He was convicted of a December, 1969, robbery of two men of $17 after he had hitchhiked a ride with them.

In April, 1969, Jeffers was one of four walkaways from the county jail honor farm near La Honda. He was recaptured several days later after a stabbing in a Daly City billiard parlor, with which he was charged.

San Mateo County records show jailers had taken four homemade knives from Jeffers by August, 1969.

Tool Theft

An estimated $1,800 in tools was taken from Ken's Automotive, 375 Oyster Point Boulevard, South San Francisco, early this week, according to police reports.

Model UN To Feature S.M. Dinner

Attention will focus on the Model UN activity at the College of San Mateo when the annual spring dinner meeting of the San Mateo County Chapter of the United Nations Association takes place at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at the San Mateo Unitarian Church, East Santa Inez and Ellsworth Avenues.

The program will be presented by members of the 1973 Model UN team who this week are representing Great Britain at the Western Regional College and University Model UN sessions on the campus of the University of the Pacific in Stockton. To be designated as one of the members of the Security Council is considered a special honor for a junior college. "It undoubtedly comes," said Attorney James O. Miller, local chapter president, "from the fact that the college has repeatedly received top awards even when representing a very small nation-state."

The dinner with the menu featuring foreign dishes will be served by the women's group of the church. In charge of arrangements is Mrs. O. Fred Fricke, Burlingame, a member of both the local UNA board and the church. Reservations at $3.50 per person must be made, she said, by April 25, with checks made payable and mailed to the United Nations Association chapter.

Foreign students at the colleges and members of Model UN teams at high schools in San Mateo County have been invited as special guests. Faculty advisors may call the chapter for further information or to make reservations, Miller stated.

R.C. Man In Coastside Gun Mishap

A Redwood City man accidentally shot himself Saturday while on a hunting trip to the Coastside, the sheriff's office reports.

The victim, Daniel L. Robinson, 23, of 1784 Hemstead Place, told Sheriff's Deputy Don Wright that he accidentally fired his .22-magnum revolver while he and his companion, Daniel W. Seitz, 20, of 927 Seventh Avenue, Redwood City, were stopped at a service station in Pescaero about 7:50 a.m.

Wright said the bullet passed through Robinson's right leg and lodged in his left leg.

Following the incident, the two men drove in Seitz's truck looking for assistance, stopping when they saw Wright's patrol car parked outside a Half Moon Bay restaurant. The deputy summoned the Half Moon Bay Fire Dept. ambulance which took Robinson to Sequoia Hospital in Redwood City.

GIRL SCOUTING

BIKE ROAD-E-O plans are now completed for this Saturday's segment of Scouting Keep America Beautiful Day. To be held at Abraham Lincoln school grounds under the administration of Cadette Scout troop No. 1620 and at George Washington school with the help of Cadette Scout troop No. 24, this award-winning event is open to the public.

Bike licensing , for 50c per bike, will be handled by the Police Explorers of Daly City, with the obstacle course, testing and distribution of coloring and song books under the auspices of the Daly City Girl Scout Association.

Last year's Bike Road-E-O won the National Safety Council's Award of Merit and this year's is an entry in Scouting Keep America Beautiful Day competition as well as in the national Girl Scout Bike A-Ways contest.

The event was also featured in the Girl Scout Leader, a national magazine. Cadette troop No. 24 is led by Mrs. Leroy Berning and No. 1620 by Mrs. Carol Ann Scott.

The public is enthusiastically invited to participate and flyers have been distributed to every public and parochial school child in the Daly City-Colma area .

FRIDAY, APRIL 27, registration opens for the Daly City Girl Scout Day Camp. With a theme of Sailing to the South Seas and scheduled for August at Junipera Serra Park, the camp will be directed by Mrs. Carol Klatt.

Registration will be at the home of Mrs. Shirley Figone, 327 Higate, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. or by mail after that date. Leaders and parents are asked to bring their checks and forms then to insure placement.

Because girls register for the level of Scouting they will enter in the fall, second year Brownies go to camp as Juniors and third year Juniors go to camp as Cadettes.

With a six-girls-to-every-adult registration ratio, girls and adults who are not affiliated with a troop may register on the waiting list which in past years has been completely served.

CADETTE DAY CAMP AIDES recently qualifying by the decision of the camp committee to service at Daly City's Girl Scout day camp include Misses Shirley Figone, Leslie Schwarzbach, Ellen Ridge, Sandy Penny, Paulette Young, Debbie Thurman, Vicky Morino and Laura Tschirgi.

Debbie Klatt, Kim Gustasson, Kitty Noonan, Debbie Rodriquez and Leanna Medina also qualified for the aide program which will include training in the arts at camp given by Mrs. Elaine McDowell.

WEAVING AND SEWING clothes for the dolls supplied by the Salvation Army, girls of Daly City Junior troop No. 333, led by Mesdames Bunne Pardini, William Ahern, and Clyde Silverthorn, recently contributed the dolls to the Army's fund-raising and community endeavors.

Determining Unearned Finance Charges

By LORENE BEASLEY

QUESTION: In buying a car, appliance or other large purchase, must the contract I sign specify how, should I decide to pay in advance the unpaid balance, any partial refund of the finance charges is figured?

ANSWER: Yes. It is called the method of computing any unearned portion of the finance charge. There are several methods that can be used and if you think you might want to pay the balance before it is due, ask the dealer or financing institution to explain this in advance of obligating yourself.

QUESTION: What is the difference between "loss leaders" versus "bait and switch" offers?

ANSWER: Loss leaders are usually a few cut-price items in limited quantities advertised for a short time in order to get buyers to come into a store. The customer in most cases believes that all items may be equally low-priced. When the item is willingly sold under conditions stated in the ad until the supply runs out, the reputable merchant usually will take an order for future delivery when the stock is replenished.

In "bait and switch" you seldom get the advertised item. The salesman with subtle tactics, refuses to sell; or says it is no good or won't last; you can't get delivery for months etc. If you see what looks like the same cheap namebrand, supposedly slightly used, appliance, suite of furniture, sewing machine, stereo set or similar merchandise advertised in classified columns week after week by the same dealer as just repossessed, traded in, or a warehouse sample, be on the alert because it could be bait in the trap to get you hooked and then switch you to something higher priced.

QUESTION: I subscribed for some magazines to be paid for in installments, I became ill and wrote the company to cancel my subscription. I have never received a reply and they keep sending me collection letters. Can you make them stop?

ANSWER: No. You entered into a contract when you signed the agreement and a contract which cannot be broken except with the permission of both parties.

QUESTION: Can a firm add a late charge to my bill if the check was dated several days before the due date and was mailed in plenty of time.

ANSWER: Yes. The date you put on the check does not mean a thing. If the firm did not get your check on time, their computerized billing system comes up with a late charge.

Nell Nortoni

Good morning, good cooks.

If you had ham for Easter, you are probably wondering what to do with that medium-small amount you have left. Here are two recipes that use up that leftover in a delicious way.

HAM AND CORN BREAD

2 cups diced cooked ham
1 pkg. frozen peas
Corn bread

WHITE SAUCE

4 tablesoóons butter or margarine
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce (more if your taste so dictates)

Melt the four tablespoons butter in medium saucepan, blend in four tablespoons flour until smooth. Add the two cups milk gradually, stirring constantly until boiling point is reached. Reduce heat and cook, stirring occasionally, three minutes longer, add one-half teaspoon Worcestershire, and blend. Stir in the two cups diced ham and cooked and drained peas. Serve over corn bread.

CORN BREAD

¾ cup flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1½ cups corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1¼ cups milk
4 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift together the three-fourths cup flour, four teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons sugar and one teaspoon salt. Add one and one-half cups corn meal, one beaten egg and one and one-fourth cups milk to make a stiff batter. Add melted shortening; beat until well mixed. Pour into greased eight-inch square baking pan. Bake in hot oven, 425-deg. about 25 minutes.

To serve, cut in squares. Makes 9 squares.

HAM CASSEROLE

2 cups diced cooked ham
1 cup chopped onion
¾ cup uncooked rice
1 can tomatoes (28 ounces)
1 green pepper, chopped
1 can pitted ripe olives (9 ounces)
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup salad oil

In large mixing bowl combine the two cups diced ham, one cup chopped onion, three-fourths cup uncooked rice, can tomatoes, one chopped green pepper, can pitted olives, one bay leaf, one teaspoon salt, and one-fourth teaspoon pepper and one-half cup oil. Mix well and turn into greased 2-quart casserole. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes or until rice is tender. Stir twice during baking time.

Serves 6.

'The Joy of Seeing'

Serramonte Art Display

What does "The Joy of Seeing" mean to 6-to-12-year-oll children in San Francisco and San Mateo counties?

You have an opportunity to see for yourself when hundreds of art posters go on display at the Serramonte Shopping Center mall off Hiway 280 in Daly City, May 3-6.

The art represents local contest entries open to all public, private and parochial elementary school children in San Francisco and San Mateo counties. The contests were sponsored by the San Francisco County Optometric Society and the San Mateo County Optometric Society Auxiliary.

The purpose of local contests, sponsored nationally by the American Optometric Association, is to help youngsters better appreciate the gift of sight.

The grand prize winner from participating schools throughout San Francisco is Ralph Simon, 12-year-old son of the City's Unified School District Art Director. He won a luxury Pacfic Far East Line cruise to Los Angeles and back via PSA jet, plus a $50 savings bond, and also first place ribbon and certificate.

FIRST PRIZE: Ralph Simon, age 12, of 139 Garcia Avenue, a seventh grader at the Hoover Jr. High School. Ralph won an overnight cruise on a PFEL (Pacific Far East Line) liner from San Francisco to Los Angeles and return via PSA jet for himself and parent. He also won a $50 savings bond, a certificate, and first place ribbon for his winning entry, which depicts sights of San Francisco.

SECOND PRIZE: Nancy Wong, age 7, of 530 San Francisco Street.

THIRD PRIZE: Rebecca Jerome, age 8, of 55 Western Shore Lane.

Nancy and Rebecca, both students at the Sarah B. Cooper School, each received a $25 savings bond, a certificate, and a ribbon. In addition, there were many Honorable Mention winners, each of whom are being mailed a certificate and ribbon to their home address.

Judges for the "Joy of Seeing" art contest were: Dr. Joseph Pugliese, Professor of Art at California State University, Hayward; Ben Hazard, Director of Special Exhibits and Education, Oakland Museum; Morrie Turner of Oakland, creator of the syndicated "Wee Pals" comic strip; and Dr. Meredith Morgan, Dean of the School of Optometry, University of California, Berkeley.

Trophies for first, second and third places were awarded by the Serramonte Center Merchants Association.

The "Joy of Seeing" display will be on the mall of Serramonte Center from May 3 through 6. Serramonte is located on Hiway 280 in Daly City.

Paralysis

TROUBLE WITH GOING TO Hawaii (pronounced Ha Va E) one gets what is known as "Polynesian Paralysis." The incubation period for this rare tropical disease begins when you step off the plane. Believe me, it can be fatal. Mater-of-fact unless I start back to work soon the nasty old editor said he'd kill me.

WE CAME BACK from the Island State with mixed emotions and empty pockets. Having been robbed on our second day in Honolulu by a gang of youths tends to add to this mixup. But the beauty of the "outer islands," the sun, sand and water helped erase all our bad thoughts. Frankly, we have to hand it to the State of Hawaii.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH still plays a mighty big part in the goings-on out there. And for that reason we feel safe in predicting, after having discussed the matter with such luminaries as county, city and state officials, people in the street and our Australian taxi driver-guide, that gambling — on the "Nevada" scale — will NEVER come to Hawaii. It took the Legislature five years to pass a watered-down version of a social gambling bill which allows folks to gamble for small stakes (steaks?) in their own homes, providing there is no house rakeoff and the total pot does not exceed $1,000.

THE JAPANESE AND CHINESE ARE buying up property so fast the mind reels. In the recent months they have bought a golf course in Honolulu, a hotel on Kauai and several condominiums. The big push is now for establishing a beachhead on the Big Island — Hawaii. There are more tourists from Japan flooding into Oahu with fists full of American dollars (their yen nnw buys more) than brush salesmen from Des Moines. The place to watch, building-wise, is Maui's Kanaapali beach area. That will be the new Waikiki. Already there are a half-dozen huge hotels there, two golf courses, scores of apartment-condominiums going up.

CRIME IS RAMPANT on the island of Oahu, with various mobsters ironing out their misunderstandings with steel.

Three such notables were gunned down in the two weeks I was there. God only knows how many before or since. Easiest place in the world to dispose of a body. Just put him into a Waikiki hotel and he'll never be found. Biggest target of the mobs is the average tourist. They hit the suckers (including me) for credit cards, travelers' checks, cash, jewelry and cars. The more organized mobs are pushing everything from girls to drugs. In other words, "Paradise" has the same problems as the more earthy places — perhaps even more.

THERE ARE a few companies which control much of the development on the islands. We were interested because one of these companies is American Factors (AMFAC). And as has been well-publicized, AMFAC now has joined Crocker Land Company (Foremost-McKesson) in development of San Bruno Mountain. Rest assured, the company is so big they have a special department for environmental studies. Before they build they do a lot of studying. On the island of Kauai, for example, AMFAC took over the famed Coco Palms resort. They intend to (and have) preserved the grove of palms planted there by Queen Deborah. And they have added to the museum in an effort to keep the old traditions alive — the torchlighting ceremonies and small zoo. Down the road, the same organization has built a pleasing development, surrounding a challenging golf course, nearby the spot where "South Pacific" was filmed. It proved to this cynical columnist that developers CAN and sometimes DO work with the environment, rather than rape it. Again, we saw other developments on Maui, by less qualified construction companies, who crowd every inch of land they can. And crowd every inch of dollar they can out of the land. Nuts to that kind of development!

THE STATE OF HAWAII has taken steps, albeit a little late, to limit the height of buildings. If we heard correctly that limit is set at seven stories along the waterfront. This move may "save" the other islands from those who like to build bigger and higher things. We could go on and on about the island state, but suffice it to say, for the time being at least, it was an eye opener. We hope to cover it in greater detail at a later time.

THE SCHOOL BOARD race for the JESD is over. The people spoke. And now the board can get down to business. First may we suggest hiring their own attorney? This would allow the District Attorney's Office to take off one of its hats — that of school board counsel. And get on with wearing just one hat — that of a prosecutor of those who break the law . . . And it might not be a bad idea for Classified Employee Commissioner Mrs. Jeanne Kennaugh to resign. This, after all the bitter in-fighting of recent weeks, might build better relations between that commission and the school board itself. Such a resignation would not be precedent setting. After all, when D. C. councilman Robert Stewart ran for the council and was defeated a few years ago he was booted off the city's Planning Commission by the winners (along with Tony Masini, his campaign head). We realize the situations may be slightly different, but there were some pretty fiesty exchanges between Commissioner Kennaugh and at least two of the board members.

ONE OF THE FIRST things to watch for will be the school board canceling those credit cards (except for administrators) and out-of-state conferences (again, except for administrators). Such a move gets our support. Matter of fact, anything that will save a few tax bucks nowadays will get our vote.

SOUR GRAPES is the name of the game by at least some of the locals. You can tell who they are by the things they say and write. Listen carefully and you can identify them by their high pitched shrills of defeat.

Civilization May End in the U.S.

James Halley

Unsatisfied

Walter Ego, writing a history of mankind in the year 4000, was known to be a meticulous student of ancient events. He, therefore, was not satisfied with the usual theories about the disappearance of Western Civilization in 2020 A.D. Among then current historians he alone seemed willing to look beyond the final hours, and had, as a result, discovered interesting and importand facts about the society he studied. These facts convinced him that the decline of Western Civilization, certainly in the United States, had begun far earlier than the moment of final collapse.

For Walter had studied the works of earlier historians, including the profound studies of Arnold Toynbee. These had so affected him that he was often considered an intellectual reincarnation of Toynbee, or. as some said, his latter day alter ego.

Toynbee, writing at the zenith of American growth noted the difference between a living organism and a society. Living things have a programmed span — "the days of our years are three score and ten." A society, however, never dies from natural causes but always from suicide or murder. He diagnosed almost all such deaths as suicides, and devoted a great deal of attention to the underlying causes of this almost universal phenomenon.

In examining the breakdowns of civilizations he eliminates failure of technology as an underlying cause. In doing this he reviewed a series of early failures, and attributes loss of command over the physical environment to social and economic factors, not to declines in technique.

In "A Study of History," 1946 —Oxford University Press, Toynbee writes this telling sentence: "When a civilization is in decline it sometimes happens that a particular technique that has been both feasible and profitable during the growth stage, now begins to encounter social obstacles and to yield diminishing economic returns, and if it becomes patently unremunerative it may be deliberately abandoned." To support his point he considers several examples.

The abandonment of the Roman roads in Europe is described as a consequence of the breakdown of the Roman Empire. People still knew how to make and maintain roads, these had been allowed to become derelict for other reasons.

In the seventh century the ancient irrigation systems in a large section of southwestern Iraq were abandoned, and in the thirteenth century the entire irrigation system of Iraq was allowed to go to ruin. These complexes had been maintained for centuries and were essential to the health and prosperity of the population. At the time of both of these failures "the Syriac Civilization was at so low an ebb in Iraq, and the consequent general state of insecurity was so extreme that nobody had either the means of investing capital or the motive for employing energy on river conservancy and irrigation work."

Examination of the ruins of the Indic Civilization in Ceylon disclosed similar circumstances. In this case a war-worn people lost the will to continue the repair of damage to an indispensable water system. Tounbee attributes the failure to a "chain of social cause and effect . . ."

Again, the Copiac and Pomptine marshes once harbored flourishing communities, but the failure to cope with long standing water problems turned these areas into mosquito breeding marshes. Toynbee ascribes the condition to a combination of social evils rather than failure of technical competence.

These lessons were not lost on Walter Ego. In examining America of the mid and later twentieth century he saw parallels. Technical competence remained high, but for imposing social and economic reasons parts of the fabric had been allowed to wear.

Nowhere was this more apparent than in the cities. Here, the failure to apply technology and business know-how were plain to see. Ego deplored the condition of large parts of American cities by the 70's. The evidence of disrepair, even from his vantage point was plain, and he wondered why a society that was generally affluent allowed such circumstances to exist.

Within the cities many houses and larger buildings had been abandoned. Electrical, plumbing and heating services had atrophied and had even been discontinued in some areas. Transportation systems that had once covered the metorpolitan community had been partially abandoned, and those that still operated were dangerous to use.

Many streets were in decay, and filth was universal. Gutters, doorways and sidewalks were heavily littered and halls in some buildings were almost impassible because of stench.

The ordinary essentials of living had fled the inner cities. Fast death awaited the careless in dark alleys or even in open streets. For hundreds of thousands life had become a daily struggle for survival.

Were these the social conditions that prevented application of technical competence in earlier ages? Certainly, concluded Ego, a nation that had had to carry this burden within the central cities for 50 years was ready for collapse.

Was America a suicide, and not a murder victim as so many of Walter Ego's day had thought? Had as Toynbee had seen in other situations, an alien enemy only succeeded in giving an expiring suicide its coup de grace?

Why had national leadership endured and even fostered these debilitating conditions when it should have been apparent that disease and malaise could rise from these untended central swamps just as easily as malaria had triumphed in the Copiac, Pomptine and Indic marshes?

The Coming Change to The Metric System

Adult citizens who look back with nostalgia on their elementary and high school studies of arithmetic and mathematics are exceedingly rare, though most would freely admit that what they learned has proved very useful.

But those aggravating problems about a farmer who wanted to know the acreage of a turnip field that was 20 rods long and 60 feet wide, the horseman puzzled about how many furlongs in a mile, and the merchant who wanted to know how many gallons of vinegar in three hogsheads, will still turn most of us off. We have plenty of trouble with lineal feet, cubic inches, and the radius of a circle, as it is.

However, having learned and probably forgotten these things there may be those among us who feel reluctant about change that will make things easier for school children of the future.

Two such changes are already upon us. Perhaps the most important is the impending change to the metric system which the Senate has approved to be predominant in the next 10 years and is already in practical use in many of the professions and in international exchange of information. The second is the invention and wide sale of pocket-size electric calculators which will solve chain problems in seconds and make child's play of multiplication, division, square roots and percentages. Some of these devices are already below $60 in price and they are likely to be as cheap as transistor radios in a few more years.

Between the two, the metric system which we already use in computing our money, and the high speed calculator, arithmetic and mathematics are no longer going to be mysteries.

Among the realists with respect to the coming change is California Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles who is already preparing to switch California textbooks and teaching to the metric system in 1976. He expects resistance, not from young and teachable pupils who will take to the metric system like a duck to water, but from teachers and parents who have the traditional reluctance to change.

Riles does not think much cost will be involved in the changeover and says "I think metrics will make it easier to solve the new math problems and enhance children's computational skills. It will enable students to avoid the unnecessary arithmetic computations which tend to turn pupils against mathematics and school."

In a short history lesson Riles explained, "There is nothing sacred and not much logic in the . . . customary system of measurements used in the United States. An inch is derived from the length of the end joint of an adult's thumb; a foot from the approximate length of the human foot; and a yard from the distance from the tip of the fingers of an outstretched arm to the tip of the nose. A mile is derived from the distance traveled by a Roman soldier in a thousand, two-paced strides."

This sort of thing, the most obstinate must admit, makes our sytem sound a bit silly in comparison with the accurate, ten-based measurements of the metric system.

A lot of older folk are going to have to learn the metric system willingly, and accept the change, or they may find themselves reduced to asking the kids for help with their homework.

Pacifica Council Rejects Mayor Selection Plan

The Pacifica City Council, which usually presents a facade of unanimity to the public, showed its rifts Monday.

Councilmen rejected, by a 3-2 vote, a proposal by Councilman Stan Farber to place into the city code a procedure for annual rotation of the office of mayor, based on seniority.

This was the same split vote by which Aubrey Lumley was elected mayor two weeks before. Harland Minshew voted with Farber, while the majority vote was composed of Grace McCarthy, who had served three terms as mayor; Mayor Lumley, who had skipped over Farber in seniority to win the mayorality, and freshman councilman Don Halverson.

Farber's proposal provided that:

1. On election years, the mayor would continue to be chosen the Tuesday after election. On off-years, the mayor would be chosen on the second Monday of April.

2. The mayoralty would be rotated in accordance with seniority; in cases of equal seniority, it would go to the person with the highest votes in the last election.

3. The vice mayor would be chosen mayor, and the person with the next highest seniority would become vice mayor. The reitiring mayor would become junior council member.

4. The mayor may be appointed for another term only by a four-fifths vote of the council.

Had these rules prevailed at the preceding meeting, Farber, who had served as vice mayor for the past year, would have been elected mayor.

Farber explained that these rules would mandate an "orderly selection process" for mayor.

He moved the rules be placed into ordinance form, for introduction at the next meeting, and Minshew seconded the motion.

"Why so silent?" Farber asked. He paused. "I prefer we have some discussion now so as not to waste the city attorney's time . . ."

Mrs. McCarthy expressed the opinion that seniority is of the least importance. She felt that training by the League of California Cities, availability and time to do the job counted more.

"You seem to decide what people have time for," retorted Farber. " . . . I would like something besides the bickering that goes on behind closed doors.

Californians

No group has ever been as rich as the Californians. They have virtually solved the problems of production that still obsess other societies; more people get higher education than in most countries. To some visitors the state seems like a colossal vacation camp — awash with personalized cars, portable color television sets, lawn sprinklers and double swimming pools.

Yet to many observers it seems as if almost all the really big social and political questions that affect the Western World began to show themselves first in California.

Thus it is observed that San Francisco schoolteachers were the first to reach their wits end over the high proportion of children taking drugs.

The 1964 student revolt at Berkeley "fully deserved its reputation as the harbinger of all the rebellions that flared up subsequently across the Western World."

The inferno of the Negro ghetto of Watts, in the late summer of 1965, was the forerunner of other big city riots in the United States, and a warning of race troubles in Britain.

WHAT'S WRONG with California? Is it that its affluence produces severe dissatisfaction rather than happiness, or that its people have too much leisure time? Is it the seat of mediocrity, and the home of black violence, technological distortions, drug culture, wrecked environment and middle-class unrest?

To the problems of California, Michael Davie addresses himself in his book, "California: the Vanishing Dream." In doing so, he produces a book that is brutally frank and full of forebodings for the future.

For him California moves into the future faster than the rest of the world. For him California illustrates that a culture based on riches and upon the creation of marvels and new pleasures doesn't work. For Michael Davie, California history from the gold rush to the present is a story of dissatisfaction on the part of residents that are forever seeking El Dorado — the golden paradise of sun, sea and easy living — but never stopping to enjoy their gains.

As an example of California-style unhappiness, he writes that we are obsessed with a desire for space so we move into areas where each home includes shrubby balconies, lawns and pools. But we are not content as long as someone can demonstrate that we can have more space. So we Californians move farther and farther away from the city only to have business follow us and the cycle start all over again.

DAVID FINDS that Californians never seem to realize that there is a limit to affluence so they are forever seeking more and more credit, and larger salaries to pay for bills. Their affluence has reached a ceiling in the amount of garbage their state can hold, in the number of parking stalls that can be built, in the amount of power available, and in the existence of sweet water that can be used. Yet Californians live in vain hopes that their paradise will live forever on top of a materialist pyramid.

"California: the Vanishing Dream" is a document that Californians should read and understand. Maybe Davie is wrong; maybe he is another prejudiced Englishman.

But, then again, maybe he is right.

Californians must answer the question, and in their answer lies the future.

Barbara Bladen

Originality

A small but stunned audience turned out for the incredible Bejart Ballet of the Twentieth Century Monday at the Opera House. They pick up where the modern trend Joffrey Ballet leaves off.

If you're a traditionalist, stay home. But if excitement, originality, the unexpected and untried are what send you to New York and Europe in search of, French choreographer Maurice Bejart and his Belgium company from the Opera House in Brussels will have you refocusing your eyes and rechanneling your concepts of modern ballet.

Two pieces used the formal music of Bach with a vocal soloist for "Contata No. 51" with eight dancers and Gustav Mahler's "Le Chant Du Compagnon Errant" sung in German by a Lieder contralto with two male dancers. In both works, the long passages of sustained musical line allowed for a fluid expression by the dancers. Forsaking the showy sprints and leaps across an angled stage which so many companies indulge in for the pyrotechnical effect, Bejart works his bodies into intricate convolusions of the human form, creating more of an architecture of dance than acrobatic feats.

I've never seen more muscular dancers than the male soloists, of which this company is made (their full company of 50 were in Berkeley two years ago) and its the first time in America I've seen unshaved chests. Standing still, they look like stevedores or truck drivers but move with the grace of gulls.

Bejart's story lines are obscure. He invites the audience to work out their own interpretations, only sketchily defining his inspiration for the pieces. He is intellectually involved with Indian mysticism and philosophy so his levels of perception are not easily fathomed at first sight of his dances.

The sole American in the company, Suzanne Farrell has a luminescent quality amid the burly sextet in "Le Marteau San Maitre" to music by Pierre Boulez. She's a "Balanchine" type dancer, tall, willowly with leg extensions that come from some deep hip socket that makes her limbs seem secured with ballbearings.

Loraine Heath

Mary Short is charing the annual Lasagna and Bingo Luncheon sponsored by the Mary's Help Hospital guild each spring to raise money for the guild's Christmas Boutique.

If thinking about Christmas Boutiques one week after Easter boggles your mind, forget that part and just come out to the luncheon to enjoy the friendly people, taste the great pasta and have fun playing bingo.

The event is being held this afternoon in the Holy Angels parish hall on San Pedro Road in Colma. No-host cocktails will be available from 11:30 a.m. with lunch to be served at 12:30 p.m. Tickets, available from Mrs. Short, are being sold for $3 per person.

Friday morning at 10:30 a.m. the guild's workshop will be open and volunteers, under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Hupf, will be hard at work on tray favors for the Fourth of July. (Those guild members surely do speed the year on its way!)

At noon the membership will gather in the solarium of the hospital to enjoy their monthly luncheon business meeting and to elect a new slate of officers. Mrs. Short has been nominated for the post of president, Mrs. Virginia Poblitz, vice president and Mrs. Mary McCoy treasurer. Aileen Katapodis has been nominated for recording secretary and Mrs. Toni Michels for corresponding secretary. Tagged to run for positions on the board of directors are Mrs. Barbara Cardinalli, Mrs. Angela Sereni and Mrs. Nanda Stewart.

THE WALTZ Kings, by Hans Fantel, will be the book reviewed by Mrs. Frank Hosmer at the gathering of the Daly City Friends of the Library tomorrow.

Mrs. Virginia Tierney, publicity chairman for the Friends of the D.C. Library, reports that the craft committee is hard at work making book marks and book worms to be sold at the May 11 and 12 Book Fair on the Westlake Mall. The page markers proved to be exceedingly popular items at the recent Serramonte Fair and the committee is hopeful of having a good supply on hand for sale during the fair. In addition to the novelty items some excellent bargains will be available for the book enthusiasts to buy. Collection points, in each branch of the Daly City Lirbrary, are still being maintained and donations of books, records, and sheet music will be most gratefully accepted.

THE DALY CITY Bike Road-E-O will be held Saturday as a part of the Scouting's Keep America Beautiful Day.

Mrs. Carol Ann Scott is chairing the Road-E-O this year and she will be assisted by members of the Cadette troops in this area.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Alumnae chapter of Alpha Iota sorority will have Pot Luck Supper on Saturday evening in the home of Mrs. Hildagard Hansen.

Daly City's Mrs. Yvonne Burk is the outgoing president of the chapter.

SUNDAY IS the big day for the members of the Holy Angels Latin Club!

An afternoon dance and buffet will be sponsored by the club to raise money for the Holy Angels Parish school.

Shop Teacher Also Handles Photography

Serramonte High-lites

Serramonte High School's course in beginning and advanced photography was begun mid-year two years ago when 16 students found that auto shop instructor Jim Christensen had the knowledge to teach the course and would add it to his already busy schedule.

At the beginning of the course there was only a very small two station darkroom in the school.

Soon interest in the course grew and there were 80 students and Christensen and Jerry Maxwell built another darkroom with six stations. Now the course will be able to handle about 150 students with the new 11 station darkroom just finished at the school.

This new darkroom will give students good flexibility since it will have a wet line process along with the Ektamatic process.

Christensen's teaching assignment at Serramonte took on a complete change and now he teaches photography and handles the class devoted to the school yearbook. The old six station darkroom will be converted into a yearbook office for the next school year.

THIS YOUNG teacher has a unique method of teaching photography. Where other instructors put cameras into the hands of their beginning students almost immediately, Christensen spends almost the entire first 18 weeks of the course in an academid approach to photography. He lectures and tests extensively on such aspects of photography as types of film, f-stops, shutter speed, depth of field, lighting, etc. Christensen says that students should thoroughly understand the camera and its workings prior to beginning to take pictures.

Once picture taking begins, the students learn to develop their pictures with assistance and finally alone. They receive a critique of their work and then continue picture taking and developing until they can do it perfectly. The printing process is next studied and from there they progress to use of filters and refinements in technique and special effects.

Christensen appears to have a good rapport with his students and believes in giving them ever increasing challenges and opportunities; thus, advanced students will help teach and train beginners.

SERRAMONTE is hosting the California Music Educators' Association Band and Orchestra Festival April 28 from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Area groups represented are Serramonte High School, Oceana High School, Terra Nova High School, Benjamin Franklin Intermediate School, and Fernando Rivera Intermediate School. A total of about 2000 persons will participate in this event.

The whole of Serramonte High School will be in use during the festival as warm-up rooms, performance areas, sight reading and clinic areas. The cafeteria will be open to serve food to those attending.

Supervision and organization of this event is being handled by Jan Gaynor, music director, and Jim Martinez, student teacher, with help from the administration.

On the day of the festival, the school will be staffed by a large group of music students and parents who will be volunteering their time.

Beef Council Says:

U.S. Consumers Better Off Than Foreign Countries

While U.S. consumers have become increasingly concerned over high beef prices, they are still better off than shoppers in most foreign countries, according to the California Beef Council.

In mid-March this year, sirloin steak cost $2.79 per pound in Rome, in Brussels, $2.45; The Hague, $2.77; in London, $1.88 — all compared with $1.69 in Washington, D.C. Of the 12 cities surveyed, only Ottawa, Canada, asked a lower price for sirloin steak — $1.68, or a penny less than the U.S. price. Data was collected by U.S. Agricultural Attache' offices.

The world's highest prices prevail in Japan with sliced Kobe beef for Sukiyaki bringing as much as $17.40 per pound. Obviously, not everyone can afford these prices and Japan's per capita consumption of beef at 7 pounds per person per year is far below the 116 pound U.S. level.

Lowest price in the world for beef seems to be in Brasilia, but it should be pointed out that Brazil is one of the greatest beef producing countries and that meat there is rationed so that it is sold only a few days each month.

Among countries receiving the sharpest increases in meat and grocery bills are those in Western Europe — particularly the United Kingdom. Consumers in the United Kingdom had long enjoyed the cheapest food prices in Europe and were understandably outraged at the new market situation.

According to a report in the USDA's "Foreign Agriculture" bulletin, British fat cattle as of January 1973 were selling for 55 per cent more than a year earlier, and wholesale beef prices had risen 44 per cent. At the same time, prices in the European Community also climbed sharply, with fat cattle prices about 38 per cent above January 1972 levels and wholesale prices up 28 per cent.

In the United States, by comparison, the increase has been more moderate. Prices for the most representative fat cattle in January 1973 were up 11 per cent over January 1972, while wholesale prices gained 9 per cent.

Comparatively speaking, beef in the U.S. is still a bargain. This country still boasts the world's lowest outlay for food as a percentage of disposable income as of 1972 — 15.7 per cent.

Hart Sale

Don't condemn Charlie Fox and Horace Stoneham on that Jimmy Hart sale to the New York Yankees before you start to think logically about it.

If you're a Hart fan, as we've always been, the trade was, admittedly, at first pretty hard to swallow. Hart was at one time one of the most dangerous right-handed hitters in the National League. He was so highly thought of by the Cubs at one poin that they offered Billy Williams in a straight-up trade; and so highly thought of by the Giants that the trade was refused.

Even with his hitting skills perhaps now somewhat diminished because of the old shoulder problems and inactivity, he would still have looked very nice coming off that Giant bench in close, late inning games to pinch-hit. And besides, it's just hard to give up on 155 major league home runs and a .282 lifetime batting average. It's hard to forget that during the five full seasons Hart put in with the Giants, he averaged 28 home runs and 91 RBIs a year. And you wonder what he could have done, in his prime, with the "new" Candlestick which suddenly favors rather than hinders right-handed power hitters.

BUT LET'S look at it from the viewpoints of both Stoneham and Fox, or at least what we theorize to be their viewpoints, based on certain facts and rumors.

Horace Stoneham is reportedly in some financial trouble. In the past when Giant gates were down, he could rely on the cushion of his Arizona properties. But it's been a bad year in Arizona, and the bet is that Horace can use capital. Hart must have still been in the $30,000 salary range, and several sources have informed us that he was also into Stoneham for some considerable loans. Chris Arnold, Hart's replacement is at, or close to, minimum salary, or, roughly half of what Hart was making. Say that is a savings of $15,000. The deal with the Yankees was cash. There was no report on how much, but we would guess it to be in the $50,000 range. Perhaps that included a settling up of Hart's bills with Stoneham, or perhaps Horace sold the Yankees Hart's notes and got cash over and above that. Any way you look at it, the deal could have been worth $75-$100,000 in cash to Stoneham, which is a windfall when opening days are drawing less than 20,000 fans.

You may scream all you want about Stoneham owing the fans a strong pennant contender and the hell with lining his own pockets, but the fact remains that if owners like Stoneham whose only business is baseball don't occasionally line their pockets, there might not, some day, be a major league team left in San Francisco to root for.

AND YOU ALSO MAY be making a false assumption that Hart could have made the Giants a stronger pennant contender than his replacement, Chris Arnold, can. Which brings us to Fox's point of view.

Despite his hitting prowess, Hart is now a player without a position, which, without the designated hitter rule is perhaps too luxurious a commodity in these days of 162 game seasons. Arnold is younger (25 to Hart's 31), less susceptible to injury, more enthusiastic, and more versatile. He can play second base acceptably, those who have seen him in his limited appearances as a third baseman in the minors and during spring camp this year inform us that he is a very good third baseman; good hands, excellent arm. He can also play shortstop and outfield in an emergency.

And he now catches well enough, we are told, so that he can be that third string catcher Fox may need during the long season now that he has evidently committed himself to a two-man catching staff. And besides all of that, Arnold is himself a solid hitter; certainly not the long-ball threat that Hart is, but a man who almost always gets a piece of the ball and hits line drives — more the type a good pinchhitter must be than the Hart type.

One last consideration in the matter is Hart. In the other league, with its DH rule, Jimmy may have found a new life, perhaps even a World Series ring with the newly contending Yankees. Although we're not so sure he's going to enjoy that long Yankee left field wall, which robbed even Joe DiMaggio of many home runs. But if you really like Hart, as we do, you can perhaps feel it in yourself to be happy for him. In his own way, Jimmy has been a rather tragic case, and he deserves well wishes.

WE THINK THAT NFL owners made a mistake when they failed to sanction sudden death overtimes to break ties, although we concede that there may be good arguments against such a new rule. A San Francisco sports columnist paid to be controversial, however, recently filled a column with all the wrong reasons why the rule should have been defeated, and following are our comments on his comments:

He said that such a ruling would:

1—more often prolong dull games than extend exciting games (an obvious thus ridiculous comment, since basketball and baseball overtimes also often prolong dull games, and extra-time in those sports haven't ruined them)

2—confuse transportation schedules (Why would they confuse transportation schedules for football any more than they do for baseball and basketball? There should, in fact, be much fewer problems for football, because they play only once a week.)

3—injury problems would be greater because more injuries occur when players are tired (for argument, refer to arguments for Nos. 1 and 2).

4—it would unfairly penalize some teams by possibly forcing one team to play extra time and incur injuries, while the rival for next week's big game plays regulation time this week and because of it, comes out unscatched and fresh (refer to above arguments)

5—because, and we quote the columnist, "sudden death would change the whole structure of the game. Football is geared to 60 minutes . . . Sudden death would change this, and you wouldn't have the same game. . . ." (This from a guy who has been FOR almost every rule to change baseball and has scoffed at people who have offered, as excuses against changes, that such new rules would change the whole structure of the game. After all, is not baseball geared to nine men, rather than 10, etc.?)

LOCAL NOTE: Harold Lorber, a former Westmoor wrestler now at San Francisco State, recently went to Cleveland, Ohio, to meet Henry Reider, the Maryland State 105-pound intercollegiate wrestling champion, and humiliated Reider by pinning him in just 1:05.

Lorber is now an official United States representative to the Macchabian Games on July 9-19.

While at Westmoor, Lorber was the NPL 95 and 105-pound champ. In 1971 he grabbed the title of Western State Junior National champ in the 105-pound division.

TAG-END: We can't help but wonder if a recent wire service story wasn't a mistake. Perhaps you spotted it. It said, simply, "Alvin Haymond, a safety-return specialist, was acquired by the NFL Houston Oilers from the Washington Redskins for an undisclosed draft choice."

George Allen giving up a veteran for a draft choice? Unbelievable.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD ★ JOHNSON

Lloyd Johnson is on vacation this week . . . His 'Bright Lights' column Will Be Resumed on his return next Wednesday.

Facts on Poison Oak Control Available

(Editor's note: This information about one of mankind's commonest afflictions is provided by the Environmental Health Section of the County Department of Health and Welfare.)

The warm months of spring and summer allow people to enjoy the out of doors. Whether at a park or in a backyard, poison oak is a potential problem to any person who uses outdoor recreation facilities.

Direct contact or contact with contaminated clothing or pets are the most common ways of getting poison oak. Thorough washing of clothing and pets after exposure will help to minimize indirect transmission of the oils which cause the dermatitis.

According to doctors of the area, from 50 to 80 per cent of poison oak cases are contracted on private property or in surrounding urban areas. Creek beds and banks, shaded canyons and vacant lots are contributing factors in the urban environment.

This points out the need for control by property owners in the city areas. With cooperative effort by property owners in urban areas, poison oak can be effectively controlled.

There are chemical weed killers available that are effective when used correctly. The Environmental Health staff has researched the problem, has had the advice of university, agricultural and occupational experts, and has developed a summary sheet on the methods of eliminating poison oak. These procedures have been field tested and found to be efficient.

Hardly a family can be found in this county that has not had a case of poison oak. Many man hours are lost from poison oak dermatitis and many young children lose time from school.

Poison oak is usually an erect shrub two to six feet tall. It also may trail along the ground or climb trees and fences. The shiny leaves, shaped like oak leaves in leaflets of three, are three to six inches long. They turn yellow or red when the soil begins to dry out in late spring or early summer. Greenish white flowers come out along with the leaves, usually in April or May.

There have been cases of poison oak that have required hospitalization for weeks, but the majority are treated in the general practitioner's office. Cases are so numerous that the general practitioner rather than the specialist sees these patients.

A case of poison oak which requires any kind of care is an aggravating experience. Secondary infections from excessive scratching are also a problem.

Printed information about poison oak control may be obtained at the Environmental Health Section at 225 West 37th Ave. in San Mateo.

DA Sets 2nd Posada Trial

The San Mateo County District Attorney's Office has decided to re-try Edward W. Posada for the murder of Pellegrino J. Pellegrini last November 28 in San Mateo.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Steven C. Grier, who prosecuted the original 11-day trial of Posada, made the announcement today.

The first trial ended with the jury of eight men and four women reporting it was hopelessly deadlocked, 12 to 2. Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo immediately ordered a "gag" as to which way the majority stood — for conviction or acquittal.

Splendid Desserts from the Freezer

By JULIA CHILD
The French Chef

A splendid dessert ready to serve at a moment's notice — that's what freezers are for, that's why ice cream was invented, and to have your own home-made special brand waiting to be brought forth — that's living in luxury.

Here are two non-cranking formulae, one for fruit sherbet, one for ice cream. Both start out with the same egg - white - and - sugar meringue mixture, but one has whipped cream and the other does not — the fat and the lean of it. Use the sherbet formula for other fruit purees like orange, strawberry or raspberry, canned or fresh peaches and apricots; add whipped cream to them if you wish to turn them from sherbets into ice cream.

MOUSSE GLACEE AUX PAMPLEMOUSSES — Grapefruit Sherbet. For about 2 quarts, serving 6 to 8.

3 or 4 grapefruit, the pink fleshed kind, if possible
3 egg whites at room temperature, in the clean dry 2½- to 3-quart bowl of an electric beater
A scant ¼ tsp cream of tartar
A pinch of salt
1¼ cups sugar
1-third cup water
Optional: 2 to 3 Tb kirsch

Preparing the Grapefruit. With a vegetable peeler, skin off the zest (colored part of peel only) of the grapefruits. Simmer zests 15 minutes in 2 quarts of water; rinse in cold water, drain and pat dry. Cut half the zests into strips 1½ inches long, then, piling 2 or 3 together, into julienne matchsticks less than 1/16 inch wide; place in a small bowl and reserve for final decorations. Cut the remaining white peel from the grapefruit to expose the flesh; cut out the segments of flesh from between the membranes of the fruit and puree through the coarse blade of a vegetable mill, in a blender, or chop fine. Place in a 4-cup measure, and squeeze in enough juice from the remains (a potato ricer is fine for this) to make about 3 cups of combined pulp and juice. Puree the rest of the blanched peel in an electric blender with a cup of the grapefruit juice (or mince very fine), and pour into measure with pulp and juice.

Freezing the Sherbet. Turn the sherbet mixture into a shallow pan or into ice trays, and freeze at zero degrees or less for an hour or more, until mushy and almost set (if frozen solid, let soften). Scrape into a mixing bowl or bowl of electric mixer and beat vigorously to break up ice crystals and unify consistency. Turn into a serving bowl, a metal mold, or individual cups. Cover, and freeze at least 2 hours for individual portions; 4, for bowls or molds.

Serving. Sherbet should soften slightly before serving. For individual portions, set in refrigerator 10 minutes. For a bowl or for scooping, allow half an hour. If it is to be unmolded, dip mold into warm water, and reverse onto a chilled platter, cover and freeze half an hour to set dribbles, then place still covered in refrigerator for 30 minutes.

Just before serving, decorate with the julienned peel and syrup, into which you may wish to stir a spoonful or so of kirsch.

GLACE AU CHOCOLAT — Chocolate Meringue Ice Cream — for about 3 quarts

This is a delicious ice cream that remains rather soft even after freezing, and is an ideal mixture to use inside a bombe glacee, as well as being an ice cream to serve in individual cups or a large bowl.

For the Italian Meringue

3 egg whites, a scant ¼ tsp cream of tartar, and a pinch of salt
1 cup sugar and 1/3 cup water in a small saucepan

The Chocolate and the Cream

1 cup milk in a saucepan
¼ cup strong coffee
6 ounces semi-sweet baking chocolate
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
A large bowl with ice cubes and water
½ pint heavy cream in a metal bowl

Make the Italian Meringue as described in the preceding recipe. Meanwhile, heat the milk, coffee, and chocolate to the simmer, stirring, until chocolate is melted and perfectly smooth; simmer, stirring, for a few minutes while chocolate thickens into a heavy cream. Stir over ice until cool but not set; remove, set cream bowl in ice, and whip into Chantilly (until it holds its shape softly when lifted in a spoon). Fold the cool chocolate into the meringue mixture, then fold in the whipped cream. This ice cream needs no mid-freeze beating; turn immediately into a bowl, mold, or cups, cover, and freeze at least 4 hours.

BOMBE GLACEE AU CHOCOLAT — Molded Vanilla and Chocolate Ice Cream

Line a chilled fancy metal mold or metal bowl with slightly softened vanilla ice cream (best quality store-bought, or use the preceding formula minus chocolate mixture, plus another half pint of heavy cream for whipping, and a tablespoon of pure vanilla extract); lining should be ⅜ to ½ inch thick all around. Freeze uncovered half an hour or until set. Push up lining all around with the back of a spoon, to be sure inside rim of mold is well covered. Turn in enough of the unfrozen chocolate meringue ice cream to fill the mold; cover airtight and freeze at least 4 hours. Unmold in warm water onto a chilled serving dish; cover with an upside-down bowl and freeze another half hour at least before scraping dribbles from serving dish. Set in refrigerator 20 to 30 minutes to soften, before bringing to the table.

Shrimp with Cauliflower

In buying fresh cauliflower, look for creamy white curd and fresh green jacket leaves, if they're attached. Avoid spread-open curd, wilting, discoloration, or a speckled appearance.

Try this main dish combining cauliflower with shrimps and a rich sauce.

HOT CAULIFLOWER WITH SHRIMPS

¼ cup butter
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 cup milk
1 cup light cream
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
1 large cauliflower
2 cups chopped cooked shelled shrimps
12 whole shrimps

Melt butter and stir in flour. Gradually add milk and cream, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat; continue constant stirring until sauce is thick and smooth. Stir in salt and pepper; fold in whipped cream.

While making sauce, cook trimmed cauliflower whole in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, keep hot. Add chopped shrimps to sauce and heat thoroughly. Pour sauce over cauliflower and decorate with whole shrimps.

Makes 4 servings.

OLM, All-Star Still Lead Loops

As the Daly City High School Recreation Cage League nears the playoffs, OLM and the All Stars remain atop the standings as they both scored impressive victories at the War Memorial Monday night.

OLM topped the Wild Brunch, 56-35, as Bernie Barbero drove the lane for 16. Andre Wilder's 34 big ones led the All Stars to a 74-29 crushing of the Indians.

Numero Uno and the Wildcats played head-to-head for three quarters, but a strong UNO defense held the Cats to only five in the last quarter, as they won, 41-28. Ric Caseli led Uno with 10 while Julius Yap paced the Cats with 10.

In action at Serramonte, the Grabbers stung the Godfathers, 35-30. Steven Carmen scored 16 for the winners. Ted and Mike Scott hit for 17 and 13 respectively, as the red-hot Gunners blasted the Bruins, 41-26. Jerry McNeil led the Bruins with 10.

Pair Work 2-Hitter, Shut Out

One of the highlights of eighth grade junior division baseball was the outstanding pitching of Jeff Jones and Roy Wockmetooah, who combined for a two hitter.

Both pitchers showed fine early season form. This fine pitching performance was somehow overshadowed by the brilliance of little third baseman, John Martelle. Martelle repeatedly turned in astonishing defensive plays.

OLM Blue Sox 6, St. Thomas More 2 — For St. Thomas More, it was too much, OLM pitching and outstanding defensive plays. Both teams were good defensively but OLM got the great play at the right time. This coupled with the no hit pitching of Tim Kavanagh and Mark Jackanich proved too much for St. Thomas More.

OLM Raiders 25, OLPH 1 — The hot bats of Ed Migale and Dick Galliani were too potent for OLPH. Migale with 2 homers and a single and Galliani with 3 singles drove OLPH up a wall. The whole OLM team did an outstanding job in supporting this one-sided victory.

SEVENTH GRADE INTERMEDIATE DIVISION

Holy Angels 6, Hunts Teamsters 3 — Both Holy Angels and Hunts left thoughts in everybody's mind that they will both be contenders for the Seventh Grade Intermediate championships. Pitching and fielding are strong points for these clubs and Holy Angels was just a little tougher in winning.

PAL Colts 5, PAL Eagles 3 — In a closely contested game the main attraction was Brian Jones of the Colts. Brian's pitching and hitting was one of the most significant reasons for victory. Jones pitched three strong innings and hit a 3 run homer to deserve his applause.

PAL Liners 2, OLPH Tigers 0 — To win, a team must have pitching is a claim that coaches have made since the beginning of baseball over a century ago. Saturday's game between the PAL Liners and OLPH Tigers proved that this was correct as neither team scored until the eighth inning in a scheduled 6 inning game. At that point, the Liners scored 2 runs and took home the victory. Both teoms showed fine poise, excellent sportsmanship, and good team spirit.

LBYA Cobras 6, St. Thomas More 5 — In an exciting game from start to finish, the Cobras finally engulfed the St. Thomas More team 6-5. Lynn Hartsfield and Bob Abraham were outstanding for the Cobras. Hartsfield went 3 for 3 and scored 2 runs while Abraham had 2 hits and scored two runs to lead the Cobras. For St. Thomas More, Gravelle had 3 hits and scored 2 runs in a fine performance.

OLM Mets 5, SAL Wildcats 0 — OLM Mets defeated the SAL Wildcats 5-0 in last week's game.

Plans for Annual DC Coaster Derby Made

The 1973 Daly City Coaster Derby, sponsored by the Serramonte Homeowners Association and the Daly City Recreation Department, will be held May 6 at noon.

The race will not take place on Morton Drive as previously scheduled; a new site has not been selected.

Inspection of cars and trial runs will be May 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Coaster Derby had its inception three years ago when a Serramonte Association Board Member, Al Kane, initiated the program for children in the Serramonte area. The race started with cars fashioned after the Soap Box type cars raced in San Francisco. This year's race will include that "official" car as well as three other coaster-type class cars.

The derby is not a sanctioned "Soap Box Derby" race.

The idea of the race is to give a father and his son or daughter an opportunity to build a car together for the competition. Youngsters from the 2nd thru the 8th grade who live in or go to school in Daly City are eligible to race.

Chairmen for the race this year are Charlie Smithson of the Daly City Recreation Department and Howard Neuman of the Serramonte Homeowners Association.

Rules and entry blanks for the Derby may be obtained at any local playground, at the Recreation Department, 134 Hillside Blvd., or by calling the Recreation Office at 992-5356.

Entry forms and a $2 fee must be received by the Recreation Department by April 28.

All entrants will be notified as to the location of the race as soon as possible.

Life Jacket Use Campaign Starts

The Department of Navigation and Ocean Development has started a vigorous campaign to persuade California boatmen to wear their life jackets.

Although California law requires one Coast Guard approved device for each person on all boats, neither federal nor state law requires these devices to be worn.

Guy Ricksecker, boating safety and regulation manager for the department, said, "The majority of California boatmen carry the required number of flotation devices. However, national statistics show 70 per cent of those boatmen who drowned in 1971, had devices aboard but did not use them, or used them improperly. It is only common sense to make children and non-swimmers wear flotation devices. Additionally, we encourage all hunters and fishermen or others using small, unstable boats to wear their flotation devices at all times."

Bruno Sports Leader Dies

Thomas A. Bunker, long-time San Bruno civic leader and father of former baseball star pitcher Wally Bunker, died suddenly in Seattle, on April 12, it was learned in San Bruno.

Bunker came to San Bruno just after World War II, and bought a home on 364 Cypress Avenue, where he lived for 17 years.

During that period, he coached Cub Scout Pack 38's baseball team and the St. Robert's School basketball team. He was active particularly in St. Robert's Men's Club and in the Boy Scouts. He meanwhile operated his own painting contracting business.

He is survived by his wife Virginia, and his three sons, Daniel and Michael of San Francisco, and Wally, who pitched for the Kansas City Royals last year. He formerly was a star with the Baltimore Orioles and won a World Series game. Bunker also has two brothers and three sisters living in Seattle.

Bunker left San Bruno about a decade ago, joined his brothers and sisters in Seattle, then moved back to San Bruno, living in a house on Fourth Avenue, and recently moved to Grass Valley. He and his wife Virginia built themselves a home in Auburn, which they completed a few months ago. He flew to Seattle for treatment of a cancer-type infection but suddenly died before his treatment could begin.

Funeral services were held at Holy Rood Mortuary in Seattle, April 14, followed by interment at Holy Rood Cemetery.

ROBERT BROWN

Services were held Wednesday for Robert L. Brown Sr., 88, of 365 Connecticutt Street, San Francisco, father of Martha M. Mannina of Pacifica.

He died in Burlingame Monday. He was native of Tennessee.

Surviving are two sons, Robert L. Brown Jr. of Morro Bay; Donald W. Brown, Maryland, and Margaret L. Henderson, Newport Beach, Calif., as well as Mrs. Mannina, 10 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were held by Nauman & Lincoln Chapel by the Sea Mortuary, in Pacifica, followed by interment at Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

HILDA HANSEN

Funeral services were held last week for Hilda Hansen, 1380 El Camino Real, Millbrae, at Lewis Funeral Chapel in Bremerton, Wash.

She died Monday at Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame at the age of 48. A native of England, she had lived in San Mateo County for three years.

She is survived by her husband James; her son, James R.; and her two daughters, Barbara Francis and Lynn Hansen, both of Seattle, as well as her mother, Sarah Seccombe of Millbrae.

Local arrangements were made by Chapel of the Highlands of Millbrae. Her remains were entombed at Forest Hill Cemetery in Bremerton.

ROY BENJAMIN HUSKEY

Funeral services for Roy Benjamin Huskey, a South San Francisco resident for 18 years and who died Thursday in Roseville, were conducted at Ocenee Memorial Garden in Seneca, S.C.

Huskey, 68, had moved to Roseville three months ago from South San Francisco. He was a retired pipefitter with Bethlehem Steel. His home was at 67 Highland Avenue, South San Francisco.

Huskey was a native of Alabama.

Survivors include his widow, Mattie of Roseville; three sons, Edward of South Carolina, Jimmy of South San Francisco and Bill of Escondido; three daughters, Mrs. Ora Mae La Force of Santa Rosa, Mrs. Jean Leasure of South Carolina and Mrs. Ann Marie Morini of San Bruno; 20 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Bumper stickers and POW bracelets are available at the Navy Recruiting Station, 1711 South El Camino, San Mateo.

Husband Shot, Wife Held

A San Mateo family dispute climaxed with a shooting in which police say the wife shot her husband in the hip with a .22 magnum revolver and then began to cry, Saturday afternoon.

Recovering at Mills Hospital is James Howard Baker, 51, of 1779 Rex Street.

His wife, Donna Joyce Baker, 46, is charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Officer Bernard Hovorka said when he arrived at the Baker home he found the victim lying on the floor in the dining room bleeding heavily from a wound in the left hip. Mrs. Mager was standing in the living room crying.

After informing Mrs. Baker of her rights, the officer said the wife asserted her husband stayed out all night, returning home at noon.

She alleged her husband then yelled and cursed at her and said he was going to hit her.

She started running, and said he pursued, police reported.

Mrs. Baker said a pistol was always kept hidden under a living room couch pillow in case of trouble. She seized it, she told police and warned Baker not to come any further.

He moved, and she shot, she told police.

Baker fell onto the couch and his wife ran to call for help. He started to walk to the kitchen but collapsed in the dining room, police said.

Mrs. Baker allegedly told police she had had two beers with tomato juice about noon.

At the hospital, Baker denied there was a fight. He said he had asked his wife to stop "drinking and spending money" and threatened to leave her. He told Officer James Steinrok, who also investigated, that there had not been any dispute nor had he harmed her.

Mrs. Baker was released on bail and was scheduled to appear in San Mateo Central District Court on Friday, April 23, 1973.

Pacifica Backs Developer Plea

The Pacifica City Council, Wednesdy night voted 4-1 to uphold the appeal of Challenge Developments, and gave their conditional approval to the 805-unit, $25-million Rockaway Highlands development.

The project was referred back to the Planning Commission with a report on the council's recommendation. The Commission will now have 45 days in which to act on the measure.

Among major changes in the plans will be the revision of the much-criticized 3000-foot-long cul-de-sac off of Fassler Avenue extension. The plans now call for two parallel roads with connecting roads between them, with a step-ladder appearance on the map. The last unit, the cul-de-sac with 10 living units, has been taken off of that portion and added on to Unit A, off of Estella Drive extension. Meanwhile, the whole thing has been cut down two units, from 807 to 805 units.

The City Council over-ruled the Planning Commission and agreed to grant an 11-acre credit for amenities, under regulations of the Hillside Development Ordinance, which allows a full 10 per cent credit for land of over 35 per cent slope. In this case, the firm could have enjoyed as high as 21 acres credit. Thus, Challenge is allowed 30 acres for building.

Challenge agreed to provide $275,000 to the city to build a fire station, which will be in the area of Estella Drive off of Fassler Avenue.

The firm also agreed to dedicate 306 acres to the City of Pacifica for permanent open space.

The sole "no" vote was by Councilman Grace McCarthy who said that she was not too sure of the structure placement.

Discussion during the meeting centered around fears of traffic problems on the currently developed portion of Fassler Drive, discussion of architectural design and topography, and structure placement, which involved keeping a low profile along the ridge line.

PROJECT LAUNCHED — San Mateo's development of a memorial room for the 101st Airborne Division, whose A Company's members became San Mateo's "adopted sons" during the Vietnam war, has officially been launched. Pictured are Major Melendez of the Sixth Army, Councilman W. L. Burkdall, committee members for the 101st memorial room, Mrs. Barbara Schroeder, Mrs. Linda Giese, and retired Fire Chief Noe J. Chanteloup, Mayor John J. Murray Jr., Councilmen Hugh A. Wayne, John F. Condon and Floyd E. Welch.

Murray Leads List In Campaign Gifts

The campaign contribution lists of San Mateo's three successful City Council candidates show total funds received ranged from a low of $2,030.75 for Mrs. Jane Baker to a high of $5,780 for Councilman John J. Murray.

Councilman John F. Condon's report showed a total of $3,798 in contributions, and Roger Winston, who was not elected, filed a statement disclosing a total received of $3,445.48.

Unsuccessful candidates for office who may wish to run again in the future have about a month within which they must file their statements.

The reports are on file with City Clerk Joan Hinckley and are available for public examination.

Three of those who filed reports spelled out their contributors and the amounts donated.

Murray, while complying fully with the elections code, identified contributors by name, but not the amounts they donated. The reason, he said, is that last year during the heat of a city council controversy, he was unfairly accused in a San Francisco newspaper of having a developer underwrite his campaign which was untrue. The newspaper printed a retraction after investigation.

The lowest personal contribution was listed by Councilman Condon who gave $1 to start his campaign rolling. The highest personal contribution to her own campaign was made by Councilwoman Baker who put in $400.

Mrs. Baker's biggest campaign expense was for signs, $760.47 to Signs Unlimited, to the city for a permit, to COGS for fabricating, erecting and removing signs, for M. L. Krasnow & Associates for buttons and to Service Press for bumper stickers.

Condon's biggest expenditure was for newspaper advertising in two publications, totalling $1,062.81.

Similarly Winston's biggest expense, $1111 was for ads in three publications.

Hillsdale High students will return to school this week, and for one day at least, so will many of their parents. Wednesday, April 25, the school will host its Eighteenth Annual Open House as part of Public School Month activities. The program will last from 8:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Principal Ray Allee has announced a record number of 31 separate exhibitions to be presented by thirteen school departments. "It will be one of our more ambitious Open House evenings," Allee said.

David Madruga, Hillsdale social science teacher who also chairs the event, concurred and added, "The kids are really enthusiastic about this year's program. Even the ones who typed up the program got excited when they found out everything that would be presented."

Included in the exhibitions will be various forms of student art work, including paintings, prints, ceramics, jewelry, silk screening and pottery; displays of stitchery and clothing in the homemaking department; a demonstration by math students of Hillsdale's new computer terminal: demonstrations by science students in physics, chemistry, biology, life science, earth science, and radiation biology; and a rehearsal for the spring term play, "Dear Me, the Sky is Falling."

Student guides will also be provided to help visiting parents find their way about the school.

The Crusade will take place in April and May and business volunteers are still needed to assist. Businessmen wishing to help may contact Kotzian at his office or the San Mateo County Unit of the American Cancer Society at 1517 South "B" in San Mateo.

The Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce will hold its 18th annual golf tournament at the Lake Merced Golf and Country Club June 7.

Harold Tonini, a Daly City educator and a member of the awards solicitation committee of the chamber, is approaching area firms for contributions for tournament awards.

Two Caught, 3 Sought in EPA Robbery

Two Menlo Park brothers were in custody today for armed robbery and sheriff's deputies were searching for three other men after an East Palo Alto trio reported they came home last night and were robbed by five men, one armed with a rifle and another with an automatic.

Held in County Jail are Ira Donnie Earls, 19, a student, and Robert E. Earls, 21, a painter, both of 1207 Carlton Avenue, Menlo Park.

Mrs. Audrey Sneed, 28, reported to Deputies Terrance L. Mackey and William Britschgi that she returned to her home at 2767 Fordham Street last night with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Falley of East Palo Alto and when she opened the door she was confronted by Robert Earls holding a rifle.

She reported another man, holding an automatic behind them, forced her and Mr. and Mrs. Falley into the house.

Mrs. Sneed said the man with the automatic forced her children into a family room and locked them in. The two women were forced to sit down and Falley, 26, was forced to lie on the floor, according to Mrs. Sneed. She said the man kept pushing the automatic in and out of the faces of all three victims, and accused them of stealing a stereo set. She said the man searched her house and even the trunk of her car, although they denied stealing any stereo equipment.

Mrs. Sneed reported she finally offered to take the money out of her purse and throw it on the floor. Ira Earls picked up $173, she said.

Four of the men got into one car, according to Mrs. Sneed, but the fifth man got into a second car with two women and some children.

Menlo Park police arrested the two brothers about 8:30 p.m. at Newbridge and Carlton avenues.

Most Incumbents to School Board

Less than 20 per cent of San Matoe County's registered voters went to the polls last week to elect 76 persons to boards of trustees in 18 school districts.

In most instances where incumbents were challenged they won re-election. However, there were some upsets.

Voters in the Jefferson School District of Daly City gave incumbent James W. Cranna the highest vote of five candidates and also returned incumbent Dorothy D. Adams to office. However, challenger David M. Parker ousted incumbent Albert V. Collet Jr.

County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church, who had predicted a 27 per cent voter turnout, attributed the comparatively low 19.19 per cent vote to the Easter vacation period.

"There's just no telling what will happen when an election is held during a vacation week," Church said.

He noted that the number of absentee ballots totaled 2151, as compared to two years ago when there were 787 absentee votes in the school election which was held in a non-holiday week.

In the San Mateo Community College District, incumbents Francis W. Pearson Jr., and Robert A. Tarver won re-election, although attorney Phrasel L. Shelton made a battle of it to place a non-winning third.

With the highest number of candidates of any school race, Sequoia Union High School District gave the only incumbent seeking re-election, Jack Robertson, a big win. Winning election to initial terms from among the ten candidates were Richard W. Dorst, a businessman, and Walter J. Harrington, a developer. Both are residents of Atherton.

In the La Honda-Pescadero Unified School District, challenger Sally Ann Knab tied incumbent James D. Hardy with 94 votes each for the second of two positions at stake on the board of trustees. If the tie stands after the official canvass of votes Friday, the winner will be decided by lot, as provided by state law. Reginald E. Drew received 113 votes to win a post on the board.

In the South San Francisco Unified School District, only incumbent Leo Padreddii won re-election. Ken Austin and Thomas H. Henkle were voted into office, ousting incumbents Leo L. Eserini and Lorraine C. Berg.

In the county's only other unified district, Cabrillo, incumbents Jane Bengston and Virginia M. Centoni won re-election, with another woman, Edith E. Phillips, joining the board after placing second in the vote tally.

Incumbent Donald Hill led the ticket in the San Mateo City School District election, with Robert H. Braun and Sue Lempert winning posts on the board of trustees.

Three incumbents, James Chalmers, Norman W. Kavanaugh and John B. McCloskey Jr., had no difficulty in winning re-election to the San Mato Union High School District Board of Trustees.

In a single contest for the County Board of Education, Elio Fontana of Colma won handily over Morris J. Tolson of Daly City by a count of 25,592 to 14,138 in Trustee Area No. 2, which includes the area of the Jefferson High School District. The incumbent, Ron Bates, did not seek re-election.

Two other members of the county board, J. Paul Bradley of Pescadero and Granville M. DeMerritt of South San Francisco, were unopposed and were given a large complimentary vote.

Voters in East Palo Alto and Menlo Park's Ravenswood City School District filled three board of trustee seats with candidates supporting the appointment of acting superintendent Warren Hayman as superintendent of the 11-school district.

Hayman backers, many of them members of the Committee of Concerned Ravenswood Parents, were successful by giving James A. Daniels 1,532 votes, Barbara R. Hatton 1,570, and Mavis Knox 1,324.

With the election of Hayman supporters — who won easily over four other candidates — it is uncertain if Dr. John L. Cleveland will be given the district's $30,000 a year superintendent post. Only last week the district board voted 4-1 to offer the superintendent post to Cleveland, an urban studies professor at San Diego State University.

Three of the board members who voted for Cleveland's appointment, however, did not seek re-election.

Members of the Committee of Concerned Ravenswood Parents staged a successful one-day school boycott in support of Hayman's appointment and indicated last week that if they were successful in electing their candidates, they would overturn the decision to hire Cleveland and offer the post to Hayman.
